temporary hands re recruitment to vacancies in the temporary scale being made after advertisement according to the rules.

Under the Revised Rules of Recruitment there seems to be no distinction between temporary and permanent appointments and a probationer once selected and appointed should be continued until he is permanently absorbed under the rules. In view of this, the special provision contained in G.O. of 15.2.1927 referred to above would not be necessary any more & need not stand as a separate special provision after the issue of these Revised Rules.
